On her curriculum vitae, let us add that she was a member of the Society of Canadian writers of the French language, the Society of Catholic Poets of France, International Pen and the Royal Society of Canada - the second woman to enter. She gave numerous conferences, contributed to various magazines and wrote radio scripts for Radio-Canada (1942-1946). Throughout her life, this writer held a significant correspondence with people as famous as Gabrielle Roy, Alfred Desrochers, Germaine Guèvremont, Rina Lasnier, etc.

At the publication of a selection of texts she did for Les Presses Laurentiennes in 1983, Benoit Lacroix presented the writer in the most flattering terms: "Artist of the miniature and tamed picture together poetess of light exploded, Cecile Chabot custody, childhood, even playfully as her first illuminations; in her, ever, still remains the intimate freshness of a fire word spoken in a low voice. "He is absolutely right.
